£100 Prize CWC Competition: In Search of a Hero

Seven asterisked clues require thematic adjustment before they can be solved fully and correctly.

Clues are presented in an order determined by grid position of the first letter of the solution. One solution is a prefix, and another an abbreviation.

Solvers should highlight our hero as he appears in the grid.

Clues directed di have diametric solutions usually running along a diameter from the number indicated on one side of a dial, through the centre to the other side of the dial. The direction Adi indicates that the diametric entry concerned takes the shortest route and does not pass through the centre.

Clues directed C are circular, running from the number around the dial in a clockwise direction. On occasions, AC indicates an anti-clockwise direction. Clues directed d have conventional down solutions. Those directed 'up' start from a number and run upwards.

The purpose of the colours in the grid is just to guide the eye.

The archive on our Download Page contains over a hundred 3D puzzles and solutions, with several examples of this style of 3D grid, for example, Sep 2018 or Mar 2017. These are free to download.

Sirius is registered blind and uses Collins Online Dictionary which is accessible to visually impaired users. When a solution does not appear in Chambers a reference is given in a yellow highlight. The same applies when a Collins definition is preferred.

Happy Christmas

This puzzle is also running on the Crossword Centre site in a separate prize pool of £100 and with a distinctive Answer Grid. This is unusual and a consequence of serious Sirius illness. He is now recovering well. Beware.
